It is not easy to be a big bird on this planet.
At the same time, it is far more difficult to be a clever bird.

*A clever pelican
was often sitting on a pole and
thinking.
Sometimes
his thoughts
were sad.*

Mainly they were about food.

*A whole flock of small birds
needed...*

...the same amount of food,

...as he did.

The clever pelican sometimes made the shadow of his great-grandfather – a huge pterodactyl – on the sand and talked to him. He well understood why his great-grandfather had died.

*Actually, the pelican was always thinking on something on his poles.
And that wasn't accidental.*

When he was a kid, he asked for wisdom the main pelicans' Gods –
Two Gold Pelicans.

*Since that time his traction
for the sublime had never left him.*

*Every day of the clever pelican
was filled with something.*

Every Monday
he sang
in the beach
choir.

*Every Tuesday
he practiced group dances.*

Every Wednesday
he practiced folk dancing.

Every Thursday the pelican learnt arithmetic.

*Every Friday he took classes
of poetry from a local artist.*

Every Saturday he learnt to walk in a beautiful way from one tourist.

*Every Sunday he flew
to an Island,*

...to his wife.

Moreover, he always felt traction
to various beach philosophers.

*He himself liked to think
and reflect upon everything,*

...observe various...

...forms of life...

...at his channel.

*The pelican never forgot about sports as well. Once a day
he practiced bird's combat sports,*

...every morning he backstroked
a kilometer...

...and swam on stomach
two kilometers.

Other pelicans liked their outstanding fellow very much.

And when he retired and moved to his wife on the Island,

*...they erected a monument
in his honor near the channel.*
