Sea always calls and attracts people,

...and many of us are excited to answer this call.

But often the sea calls us...

...more deeper.

There,

where it keeps millions
of different secrets,

A large hammerhead shark is the central focus, swimming vertically in clear blue water. Its distinctive T-shaped head is prominent. Numerous small fish are scattered throughout the water, particularly around the shark. In the lower right, a scuba diver is visible, providing a sense of scale. The water's surface is visible at the top, with sunlight filtering through. The text "...for the most persevering..." is located in the bottom left corner.

...for the most persevering...

...and trusting friends.

This call of depths is also heard by many people,

...and they answer to it with enthusiasm.

Someone he leads to the tropics,

...someone to the Polar ice,

*...and others –
to underwater caves.*

Great wet friend...

...waits for us everywhere,

...and glad to each new meeting.

And people should not fear the sea.

If we visit it like a good friends,

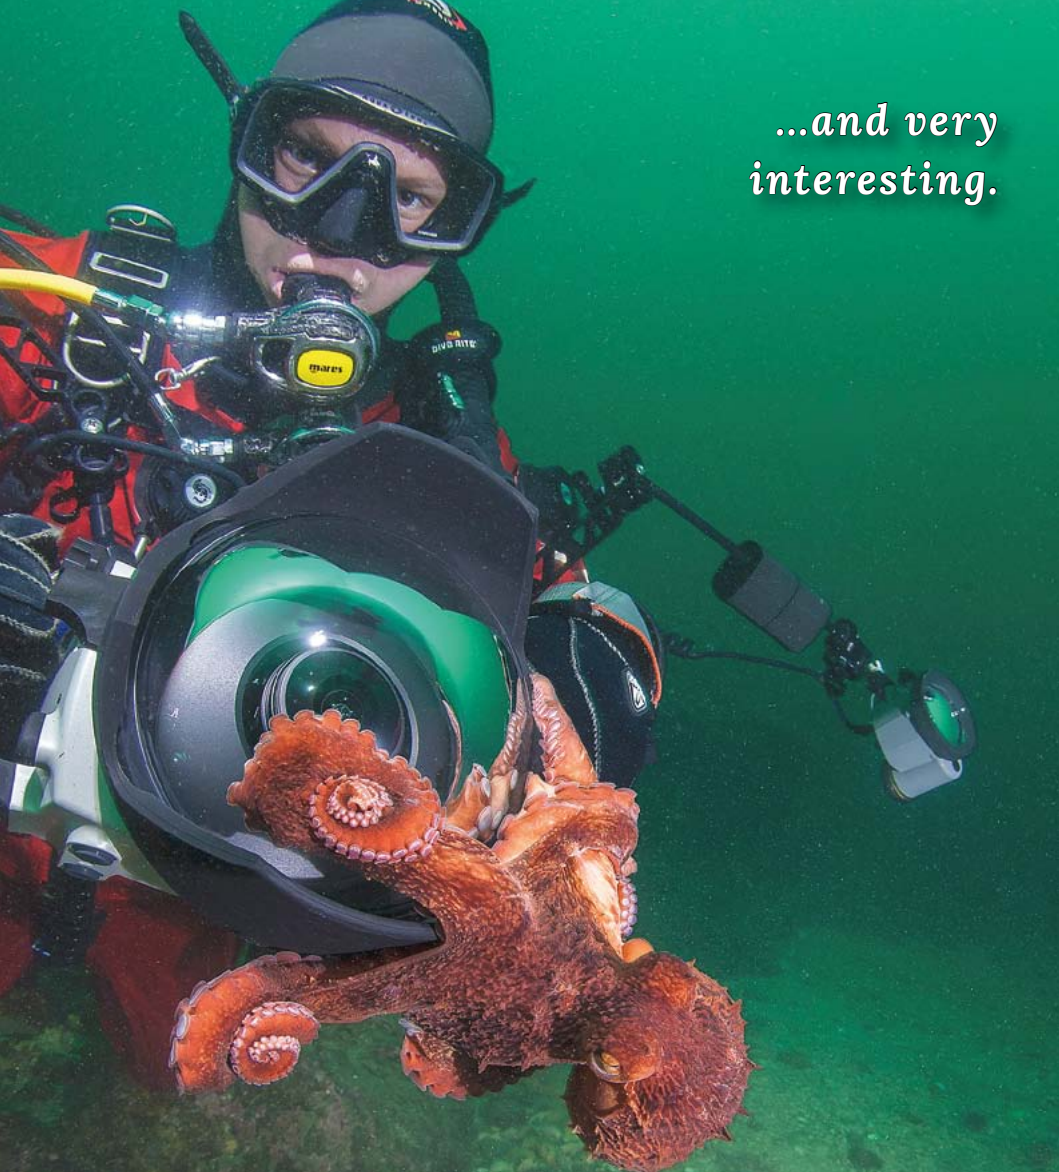

...all feels here very well,

...comfortable,

...and very interesting.

Friendly guests always meet with pleasure everywhere,

...and the sea here is no exception.

The beauty of an underwater world,

...its bizarre
forms,

...and unusual scenes,

...all this is something impossible to get accustomed,

*...something that delights
you endlessly.*

Or, rather, as long as the air in our cylinders will allow...
